Mobile technologies have revolutionized society, but we've only just begun to thrive.

New ways of using hand-held devices to communicate with the world—first with Wi-Fi and now with LTE-Unclassified (LTE-U) and Licensed Assisted Access (LAA)—are fueling a true mobile transformation and empowering consumers.

A new coalition of mobile and technology companies formed EVOLVE to both promote new unlicensed spectrum technologies and preserve this spectrum as an open platform for innovation.

Our members strongly support Wi-Fi and understand the important role it plays today and in the next generation of mobile communications. That's why LTE-U and LAA are being carefully designed to co-exist with Wi-Fi.

EVOLVE and its members are collaborating to give consumers more choice for a faster, smarter, and more seamless mobile experience.
